Creation. The Mercurius Aulicus newspaper originated during the English Civil War from a suggestion by George Digby, a key advisor to King Charles I, that the Royalist faction needed a method for promoting their views in Parliament-held London. As a result the publication was established in January 1643 - it is variously termed either a newspaper or a newsbook - the latter being an alternative ...

Mercurius Aulicus - Wikipedia

The Mercurius Civicus, or London's Intelligencer, printed an article in the issue dated 18 December 1645, explaining to Londoners the absurdity—and impiety—of keeping Christmas Day. The paper stated that it was more probable that Jesus was born in September than in December, and quoted a “late minister” as saying:

“The omission of a shadow” - Warring Words
